~EMAAC DOCENTS~

Member volunteers serve as Gallery Docents on days that the Executive Director does not work or when she needs additional help with greeting visitors, making sales and helping set up for events and workshops. Artists who serve as Docents receive a 10% reduction in the Gallery commission on work sold.

There are currently about a dozen trained Docents. Several of the volunteers attended a training on June 14. They learned from Paula how to record sales and use the credit card machine (it's easy!). Susan Haygood, experienced retailer and past Docent Coordinator shared suggestions for greeting and engaging potential customers. Newly-appointed Docent Coordinator Sari Clark set up a schedule of Docents for the next few months. Being a Docent is fun and easy and a great way to learn about EMAAC artists and their work. Docents will be gathering periodically to broaden their knowledge and share ideas. If you would like to become a Docent, contact Sari (783-4438). Many thanks to those who currently serve this important volunteer role!

COMMENTS FROM LISA de St. CROIX

In this series of paintings "Emergence," I am working to bring the unconscious to consciousness. As I look within, archetypes and shape-shifting reveal my internal drama of transformation. Through this exploration of my psyche I see my personal mythology becoming a universal quest for self.

EMAAC MEMBER BETH McDONALD NAMED ARTIST-IN-RESIDENCE IN ASPEN

Selected for her poetry by judges for the San Juan National Forest Artist-In-Residence Program at the Aspen Guard Station, Beth McDonald will spend July 6-20 in Aspen concentrating on her writing skills. The goal of the program is to enhance public awareness of natural and cultural resources on public lands through creative venues. Congratulations, Beth!

Lynx

A dark, large shape blurs fast across the road.
A cat? I ask myself. That big? That fast?

And then, behind the first, a second lynx flows through the junipers across the road, then stops. I stop the car. The fire of eyes,
ears pointed, markings black and bristling life,
stir up the wilderness beside the road.

Dry hillsides, soaked with early morning sun, shine with the lynx's pools of yellow eyes.
The junipers stand bristling, tense, alert
to any movement signaling response.
Above the hills cliffs rise and listen, poised
into a moment bunched into a spring
of muscles hidden deep inside red stone.

I hold my breath. The lynx waits, stillness stirred into the morning sun, the hillsides, cliffs.
And then, indifferent to the road, my car,
the self inside the car, it moves; is gone.

The wilderness begins to breathe again.

SO LONG, GOOD FRIENDS!

The EMAAC community is losing two great contributors and entertainers. Herman van Diepen has left for a new job in Hobbs, NM. A long time area resident, he always was quick to help out his neighbors. He served on the EMAAC Board and was often seen on stage at Open Mic night. Herman will be sorely missed.

A.J. (Tony) Rice has given us many evenings of pleasure with his masterful and eclectic guitar playing. Originally from Alaska, studying in Philadelphia and New York, A.J. had gigs across the country. He leaves to tour Germany and other European stops, with his ultimate destination Oulu, Finland. Bon Voyage, Tony!

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S LETTER

This past quarter's Ancient Way Arts Trail Festival celebrated the newly designated Arts Trail, the first in the state sponsored by New Mexico Arts. The Trail features art related sites like the Gallery along Highways 53 and 602 with a brochure and website. EMAAC helped celebrate the Arts Trail Spring Festival on May 31 and June 1: an Open House on Saturday, with artist Alicia McCabe demonstrating how she creates her popular ceramic "Petroglyph Ponies", saw over 75 visitors at the Gallery; Sunday we had fun with a Community Art Project, painting on a giant canvas from a giant palette created by Eden Gloria (see page 5). Kids, adults and guests from as far away as the Netherlands participated. Watch for the canvas on display some time soon.

We had a great increase in sales at the Gallery this quarter. With the difficult economy, sales have been down overall, but May and June were excellent. And the successful Arts Trail weekend has shown that focused, statewide publicity can bring visitors to our area and benefit EMAAC. Artists – Our website is seeing increased traffic. If you don't have your own site, call me about creating a page for you on EMAAC's. We need photos of your art work for display at the Gallery. We plan to have a second computer for presentations of artist's work, a visual catalog of our art shows and programs, and information for visitors or customers who have interest in a particular artist. --Paula Tripodi

THANK YOU SO MUCH!

Thank you to those who held fundraising events for the Arts Council – the Poetry Group, "Pretend 2 Believe," CJ Grimes, and everyone who helped with our Annual Yard Sale and the May Festival Dinner. To everyone who contributes a dollar when you attending an ongoing class or group, thanks! General Operating Expense dollars are hard to come by and you help pay the utility bills!

BOARD PRESIDENT'S LETTER

I'm always amazed by the enthusiasm, commitment, and energy this community gives to the Arts Council. In these past three months we have had several successful fund raisers, great community events, a beautiful gallery show, and are now literally on the map with the Ancient Way Arts Trail. Truly, thanks to all those involved!

We are continuing with the long range plans for building improvements. Phase one of a new paint job should be completed soon.

Sadly, we have lost several board members including our Secretary. I urge you to consider coming on the Board. The more people we have, the more we can get done.

Yours, Tony Buchen
